

EUROPEAN OFFICIAL GAZETTES: INTRODUCTION AND DESCRIPTION

Official gazettes are basically the medium by which national and sub-national governments officially disseminate new legislation, regulations, orders and decisions of government bodies, and official announcements, although not always in full text. Some gazettes also contain the texts of international agreements, court decisions and legislative debates.

Not all gazettes contain both legal and administrative information. Some governments issue two: one for administrative announcements and one for the promulgation of laws and regulations.

The list brings together the holdings of national official gazettes of the British Library and the Library of the Institute of Advanced Legal Studies, University of London. It is hoped that the holdings of other UK institutions will be added in future with a view to providing a comprehensive union listing of these hard-to-find materials. Where possible, explanatory notes about contents, history and the availability of electronic versions have been added. It should be noted that due to the size of the runs it has not been possible to give detailed information about completeness. Anyone searching for specific issues would be advised to enquire in advance of a visit to the holding library about availability of these issues.

British Library official publications are in the main housed off-site so should be ordered at least 24 hours in advance of a planned visit. For general information about admissions, use of the collections and ordering material see the British Library Social Policy Information Service web site:
